Dear Sam,

I'm really sorry you haven't been able to use the building instructions with black backgrounds and for anything that may have been poorly communicated to you by phone. We'll make sure the calls are reviewed to get a better understanding of what happened, and so we can address such insensitivity.

I'm happy to let you know we've been listening to feedback about the background colour in our building instructions. We've done lots of testing already and have plans to move away from the black backgrounds entirely.

We recognise how important it is to be mindful of visual and colour impairment when we create our building instructions. We have LEGO® designers with colour impairment helping us improve in this realm.

We can't give you a timeline or further details about improvements to the background colour in our instructions, but we're making sure we listen, learn and get better. Your comments have already been shared with the appropriate teams who'll include them in the discussions taking place.
